

HIS 2261: Frontiers in American History

The frontier as a place, as a process, and as an idea animating and explaining American expansion since the revolutionary era, including the cultural, social, political, economic dimensions of this expansion, both in the American West and abroad.

Credits: 3.0

Program: History